Flight School Is Discontinued Here

School Has Had Excellent Rating Since Its First Work in 1940.

Notice has been received by the naval cadet flying school which has been operated by the College and the Maryville School of Aeronautics that the present flying group of fifty-four naval flying cadets will be the last to be sent here under the present set-up. Examinations in the ground school have been completed and the flight students have until May 20 to finish their flight program.

A "Prize School"

"Inadequacy of the airport" is the reason given for discontinuance of the program, but the records show that the Maryville aviation school is among the best in the Middle West and was considered by the naval aviation cadet selection board at Kansas City as its "prize school." It always has rated excellent in ground school, flight instruction, housing, coordination, mess and transportation, according to Lieut. John Rahm of Kansas City, in a conversation with M. C. Cunningham, the local co-ordinator.

Mr. Cunningham, who was in Kansas City recently conferring with the naval aviation officers, said the navy and CAA officials had only the highest praise for the school at Maryville.

Three hundred and eighty-eight persons have taken pilot training in Maryville since the course started as the Civilian Pilots Training course at the Maryville School of Aeronautics in July, 1940. When permission was granted, as Lieut. Norvell Sawyer later described it, "we had neither airplane, airport nor pilot," and when a group started training three weeks later, they had acquired a "30-acre pasture, one plane and one instructor."

There were two girls in the first group of fifteen students who started primary flight training that July. They were Martha Jean Harmon and Doris Virginia Bristol. A secondary course was started in the fall of 1940, and in the following spring, 1941, the cross country course was added. It was one of three centers in the fifth flight region, which consisted of several Mid-West states.

In the summer of 1941 an instructors' course was added, which made

Lillian de Lissa Is to Speak at Horace Mann

Miss Lillian de Lissa, principal of Gypsy Hill Training College, London, will speak at the Horace Mann Auditorium of Northwest Missouri State Teachers College at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of May 30.

When Miss de Lissa reached college age, she earned the money for her education by acting as pianist for the Sydney Kindergarten Training College and by teaching fellow students.

During the year, Miss de Lissa accompanied Miss Frances E. Newton, principal of the Sidney College, on a lecture tour to Adelaide, Australia. She remained for twelve weeks and was then appointed principal of a Kindergarten Training College there.

During the next four years, Miss de Lissa journeyed several times between England and Australia still pursuing her career in the study of education of young children and teacher-training. She organized and was principal of the first college to specialize in this work—Gypsy Hill College. This college was later bombed.

Her book "Life in the Nursery School" is widely used in teacher training colleges and war nurseries. Miss de Lissa is now in the United States at the invitation of the Child Study Association.

A. A. U. P. Honors Highest Ranking College Students

Mary Tilton, Gene Yenni Make Best Grades for Whole College Career.

Miss Olive S. DeLuce, head of the department of Fine Arts in the College, will give the address at the annual Scholarship Dinner to be given by the American Association of University Professors on Saturday evening, May 15, at the Linville hotel. Her topic will be "Values."

Honor guests at the dinner will be the high ranking students in scholarship in the College. The four highest ranking students from each class and the two highest ranking seniors for their full period in college have been selected by a committee of the A. A. U. P. working with the Registrar.

Representing the Senior class will be Ruth Woodruff of Shambaugh, Iowa, Raphael Sigrist of Helena, James Raphael Sigrist of Helena, and Gene Yenni of Fairport. Mr. Yenni is in service, located at Camp McQuade in California, and will be unable to attend.

The members of the Junior class are J. Luther Dougan of Hamburg, Iowa, Elizabeth Ann Davis of Derby, Iowa, Dorothy Masters of Maryville, and Beryl Sprinkel of Holt. Mr. Sprinkel is in service and will not be able to attend. He is at Camp Roberts, California.

A tie for honors in the Sophomore class made it necessary to name five representatives. They are Clarence Carter of Maryville, Clara Belle Sullenger of Richmond, Helen Brand of Helena, Esther Miller of Fairfax, and Marie Gilliland of Kansas City.

Another tie existed in the Freshman class and the following were selected: Mary Rose Gram of Maryville, Ruth Ann Scott of St. Joseph, Verlin Tompkins of Barnard, Louise Johannes of Cornling, Iowa, and Betty Jo Stanton of College Springs, Iowa.

Honored for having the highest rank throughout their whole college career are Mary Margaret Tilton and Gene Yenni.

Additional guests at the dinner will be President and Mrs. Uel W. Lamkin, Dean and Mrs. J. W. Jones, and wives of the faculty members who are members of the American Association of University Professors.

Growth of Maryville Impresses Dr. Gingrich

Dr. Gingrich, speaker for the Copernicus Day exercises, was very much impressed by the way in which the town of Maryville had grown since he left here almost 38 years ago. He also enjoyed visiting with old friends who remembered when he taught here.

At Carleton College, Northfield, Minnesota, Dr. Gingrich teaches primarily mathematics. He now teaches mathematics to 212 army men for a term of 48 weeks. This intensive study covers all and more than the average mathematics major takes over a period of four years. He is also editor of "Popular Astronomy" and director of Goodspeed Observatory. Dr. Gingrich has been at Carleton College for 33 years.

Collects Rare Buttons

"Button! Button! Who's got the button?" If people knew what a collection of buttons Bernice Johnson, of Stanberry, a member of the graduating class, has amassed, there probably would be no question about who has the buttons.

Some thirty-five hundred buttons are in Miss Johnson's collection. She began collecting because she is in a family of collectors. Her mother collects iron-stone china; her two sisters, Mrs. Paul Derks and Mrs. L. E. Maple of Stanberry, collect old glass.

Out in an old barn in Stanberry the buttons from the Van Hook Dry Goods Company were stored when the firm went out of business, "years and years ago," Miss Johnson says. When the estate was settled, Miss Johnson had acquired these old buttons. All of them were at least fifty years old, Miss Johnson thinks, and does not know how much older they may be.

Asked where she gets her buttons to add to the collection, Miss Johnson says that she has frequented junk shops and found many in them. Her finest buttons she bought in Pella, Iowa. These are twelve flagare face buttons. Six of them have men's faces on them; six have women's faces. People have tried to buy these buttons from Miss Johnson, but she refuses to part with them. They were made in France.

Friends of Miss Johnson bring her odd buttons. On the other hand, they try to persuade her to let them

DR. ALBEA GODBOLD

St. Louis Minister Will Give Address

'Grasshoppers or Canaan?'
Will Be Baccalaureate Speaker's Subject.

One major change in the announced plans for Commencement is that Dr. Albea Godbold, minister at St. John's Methodist Church, St. Louis, will give the baccalaureate address on Sunday morning, May 16, at the auditorium of the Administration building. President W. W. Parker, who was to have spoken, had to ask to be released in order that he may be in New York City on business relative to the Navy V-12 program.

Dr. Godbold will use as his topic, "Complex—Grasshoppers or Canaan?"

The baccalaureate speaker, Dr. Godbold, has his Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Divinity degrees from the Southern Methodist University, his Master's degree from Yale, and his Doctor of Philosophy degree from Duke University.

Dr. Godbold may be known here, for he has been broadcasting over KSD in St. Louis. On May 2, he broadcast "Practical Religion" at 11:00 o'clock a. m. He has held positions in college towns and it is said that he is popular with college students.

McComb, Mississippi, is the home town of Dr. Godbold. He is an uncle of Miss Winnie Carruth of the Physical Education department of the College.

The Women's Chorus will furnish music for the baccalaureate service. Dr. Reven S. DeJarnette, head of the Conservatory of Music, will direct them in "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring," Bach-Regger and "The Lord Is My Shepherd," Schubert. Miss Alice Isley, pianist, will play Schumann's March, Opus 76, Number 2, as a recessional.

Officers Installed at Assembly

Installation ceremony for the president of the student body, J. L. Dougan of Hamburg, Iowa, and vice president, Mona Alexander of Shenandoah, Iowa, took place in the assembly program Wednesday. The senators for next year also took their oaths for office in the same assembly. Barbara Kowitz and Ed Johnson, retiring president and vice president of the student body, were in charge of the meeting.

Miss Helen Panell of Illinois State Normal University was elected chairman for next year and Eileen Cooper of Iowa State College is vice-chairman. Recording secretary is Dorothy Kelham from University of Illinois and the corresponding secretary will be elected secretary of the club at Illinois State Normal University. Lucille Watson from Iowa State College is treasurer. Mary Rose Gram of Maryville was appointed publicity chairman, and Mary Ann Busby of Maryville is state chairman for Missouri.

Illinois State Normal University at Normal, Illinois, will be the host school for the convention next year. The Province was organized in Maryville five years ago and since then conventions have been held in Ames, Iowa; Lincoln, Nebraska; and Hays, Kansas.

Miss Frances Meyer, president of the local Newman Club, is the outgoing recording secretary of the Province. Miss Margaret and Miss Katherine Franken are sponsors of the local club and Reverend Father Miller is chaplain.

Newman Clubs of Central Province Hold Convention

Miss Busby Is Elected to Office of Chairman of State of Missouri.

The Newman Club of the College was host last week-end to delegates for the fifth annual convention of the Central States Province of Newman Clubs, which is composed of Newman Clubs from five states, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Kansas and Missouri.

Delegates present were Harold Kjar, chairman of the Province; Reverend Father Schares, chaplain of the Province; Eileen Cooper, Lucille Watson, and Virgil Reinhart from Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa; Helen Panell from Illinois State Normal University, Normal, Illinois; August Utlick, University of Illinois, Urbana, Illinois, and Larry Barrett from University of Iowa, Iowa City.

The convention began Saturday morning, at nine o'clock at the Newman Club House, at which time reports from all clubs were given. The main feature of the afternoon program was a lecture by Reverend Father Thompson of Conception College on "Philosophy and Peace." The talk provoked much thought and was followed by a lively and interesting discussion.

Group Visits Convent and Abbey
The group visited the Benedictine Convent at Clyde, and at Conception made a tour of the monastery grounds, visited the rare book room, attended Liturgical Vespers, and heard a short organ recital.

The evening meeting was a business meeting at the College Student Center, followed by dancing and refreshments.

Sunday morning, the delegates and members and alumni of the local club attended St. Patrick's church for mass and communion, followed by a breakfast at the Linville Hotel. Special guests at the breakfast were President Uel W. Lamkin, who greeted the delegates, Mrs. Lamkin, Dean and Mrs. J. W. Jones, club advisers and alumni, and Mr. Floyd Pope, a representative of the Knights of Columbus, and Mrs. Pope, Father Schares responded to President Lamkin's greeting and Miss Mary Ann Busby gave a brief history of the Central States Province.

The breakfast was followed by a business meeting at the Newman Club House at which time officers for next year were elected and a meeting place was selected.

Without sacrificing editorial independence or their right to make independent judgments, editors and staff members of this newspaper agree to unite with all college newspapers of the nation to support, wholeheartedly and by every means at their command, the government of the United States in the war effort, to the end the college press of the nation may be a united voice for Victory.

THE COLLEGE OATH

"We will never bring dishonor to this, our College, by any act of cowardice or dishonesty. We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the College. We will revere and obey the College laws and do our best to inculcate a like respect and reverence in others. We will transmit this College to those who come after us, greater, better, and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us.

EDITOR EXPRESS THANKS

Another year of editing the Northwest Missourian is closing with this number of the paper. Editing the paper has not been all smooth sailing; in fact, many snags have come in which had to be straightened in order to get the paper written and printed. But that all goes to make journalism what it is.

As editor of the paper the last two months, I want to thank the members of the staff for the excellent and cooperative work they have done on the paper. The associate, society and feature editors and reporters have had a more than usual amount to write because of the small numbers of staff members and they have willingly volunteered to write and have turned in their material. I want to thank the students who are not on the staff and the faculty members for their hints on news and contributions.

To Miss Dykes, who has written more than is almost humanly possible considering the many other duties she has, I want to express my sincere appreciation for her patience and guidance as the paper's faculty adviser.

The senior members of the staff of course are leaving the paper and some may be sponsors of high school publications next year. To them I wish the best of success and the hope that they will come back and visit the Northwest office in the future. To the other members of the staff who are not graduating, I hope that they will all come back next fall and work on the paper as they have this year.

Gene Yenni also deserves a vote of thanks. He did wonderful work as editor of the paper the first seven months of this year and since he has been in the army he has not ceased to contribute to the paper.

—Esther Miller, Editor

Quotable Quotes

"Liberal education is essential to citizens of a democracy. It is essential to our citizen-soldiers in a war which requires initiative and intelligence. Technical training which is not based on liberal education will produce only robots. Robots cannot win the war or contribute to the peace; they can be only a menace to the nation." University of Chicago President Robert Maynard Hutchins.

"We believe that the teachers' colleges of the land would take a helpful step if all of them, instead of fewer than half, required their graduates to take a course in American history before receiving their diplomas." Allan Nevins and Samuel McKee, Jr., of the Columbia University department.

"Extracurricular activities have in common the value of constituting a laboratory in the fine art of cooperation. Benefits gained apply interchangeably to men and women in both the armed forces and civilian life." Dean Charles Maxwell McConn of the New York University Washington Square College of arts and science.

"I am all for the plan that people who earn education by being capable should get education free when the war is over." Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

From the Dean

Would you agree that the secret to success in college is summarized in these five statements:
Intelligence, good work habits, ability to read well, Purpose and ambition, Helpful and sympathetic parents, Good health and emotional stability, Ability to make adjustments.

J. W. Jones

ADVISER SAYS "THANK YOU"

With this issue, the Northwest Missourian closes another year of its history. It is with a feeling of pride that the staff, the office force, the editor, and the adviser can say that despite many difficulties the paper has come out during the whole of the year. At times it looked as though it might be necessary to discontinue putting out the paper.

A few of the difficulties may be understood when it becomes known that inroads the war has made on the group of students who took on the responsibility for the Northwest Missourian have been many. Gene Yenni was chosen last fall to fill a vacancy in the office of editor when Betty Bowler failed to return to college. He served faithfully until the E. R. C. men were called into active duty the last of March. Esther Miller, then associate editor, was promoted to the place of editor.

To both editors, the adviser wishes to express her thanks in this public way for the excellent manner in which they met their responsibilities. It is probable that nobody except the adviser realizes fully the long hours these two young people put in week after week to make the paper a success. Miss Miller and Mr. Yenni do not know it yet, but this week the Northwest Missourian adviser received notice that the paper had been rated "Good," with Second Honor Rating by the national Associated Collegiate Press. The adviser thinks that these editors can feel proud of that rating in the face of the difficulties under which they worked.

One difficulty was the fact that the assistants in the office have changed constantly. Hardly was one trained to the work of typing, handling the circulation, mailing out, until he was called to the service of the United States. The same was true of the sports writers. One after another, the staff lost Jack Langston, Paul Gates, Robert Kamler, Robert Coffman, Eldon Lawson, and Ernest Ploghoft. When Gene Yenni left, the staff became all-feminine. Eleanor Peck and Patsy McDermott became assistants and later Miss Peck was made the associate editor.

The remarkable thing about the staff this year is that when one person left, the others just turned in and kept things going. When the adviser had an accident that kept her in the hospital and later curtailed her activities, the editor, Gene Yenni, took added duties. When Mr. Yenni had an accident, Esther Miller, the associate editor took on the duties of both the adviser and the editor. And so it was throughout the year. The staff had no shirkers. And the adviser is grateful.

The fact that the men and women in Service were so eager to have news of the College added zest to the matter of putting out a good paper. That was responsible, too, for the determination to keep the paper going even though the work was hard and the difficulties many. The grateful letters of appreciation from alumni and former students, particularly those in service, have made all of us associated in the task of putting out the paper say more than once, "We can't let those in service down!"

May I now, personally, say my thanks to everybody who has assisted on the Missourian in any way this year. I hope that we shall have as good and as conscientious a staff next year as we have had this.

—Mattie M. Dykes.

A discussion was held as to what to do with the old magazines from the Bearcats' Den. Elnae Gorschuch moved that the Senate give them to Residence Hall. This motion was seconded and carried.

Plans for clean-up day were discussed and it was decided that the various classes would clean up sections of the campus and the Senate would clean the wall east of the Administration Building.
Rachel Taul reported on plans for the Den.

My Secret

No one knows my secret
And I can tell no one—
And I am alone.

I walk through the streets
And people are everywhere;
Little people, big people,
Laughing people, indifferent people;

And yet, I cannot take a single one.

By the hand and say, "Listen,
I want to tell you something!"

Children play at recess in the schoolyard.
Boys scuffle and knock each other down.

They strut and talk big-boy stuff—

(The little Filipino stands in the Corner alone and bounces a ball,
But I cannot talk with him nor Tell him that I am alone too!)

A fragment of the sunrise, a part of Secrets I know but dare not tell.
(I could tell them of the morning star—

The girls jump rope and swing.
They giggle and goggle with secrets—

The bright one standing apart from the sun—
They walk with arm entwined.
The heavens, of eternity—
And it stands alone!)

I could tell them but they would not Understand—I am certain of it—
How can they comprehend that which is

All ready a part of them?
They are the cool moss that grows

In the shadow of the sullen oak;
They are the silent whisperings
of the snow;

They are the fresh green grass;
They are hunger and cold;
They are me!

Old men are sitting in the court house yard—
Old men that do not talk much.
They are silent with their secrets.

I could walk up to them, take their Hands and say, "Old men, I know your

Silences, the memories that sob in your Hearts. I know your lost dreams are like

Lonely children in the neglected dark. I Know of the star that falls without sound

From out the sky."

I could say, "I am your silent self.
I am your youthful day of lust and Eagerness. I am your solid middle day.

I am your old day, tired as a worn-out sun,

Waiting for death—just waiting!"

I could say that if my lips would only speak!
But they do not move—

Only my heart speaks, silently, feverishly!
And so I am alone.

How can I tell them—the maimed,
The twisted?
How can I tell them of my secret?

I would not speak of pity nor of recompense.
I would tell them of great spaces filled

With trees and sun—the willow swing over The pond—of the child who sings and Make-believes.

But I cannot tell them of the living
And moving millions whose footsteps mark the Minutes of eternity,

Of the crawling and the marching,
Of the grasping and the sobbing;
I cannot tell them of the things of forever,

Of men who march yet whose souls grovel,
Of crippled limbs that falter yet whose

Hearts bless the dawn;
I cannot tell them of my secret.
They need not know of it,
For they are not alone.

The old woman next door is healing
In her garden,
And the men on the bus talk about

Re-treads on their tires and the war Situation.
Women are sweeping their front steps,

And shaking rugs out of the windows.
The delivery boy is whistling at the back door.

Professors are talking of government
And politics—important things.
I hear them every day.

But I cannot tell them that the girl
Across the hall cried herself to sleep

Last night, or that the girl who sells cosmetics at Peck's Drug Store

Has a new diamond, or that the Little colored boy who sells papers on

Barth's corner dropped a dime down the grill—

I cannot tell them of these people,
Nor can I tell them of important things

Like politics and government.
And I cannot tell these people—
I cannot tell these people that I am they—

That we breathe as one, sing
as one,
Pray as one—

But if one of them understood without My telling—
I would no longer be alone!

The Collegiate World

The student with average mental capacity is far less a problem to his professors than his brighter classmate, reports Dr. James D. Page, instructor in psychology at Temple university.

The average student, according to Dr. Page, oft-times becomes a better leader because he is better able to organize his daily study routine and fights just a little harder.

Better students fail to attain good grades, states Dr. Page, because of disorganized study habits and failure to establish a goal for themselves.

Despite withdrawal of Harvard and Yale because of wartime sports curtailments, the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball league is playing a full schedule of 20 games.

A new course titled "Humanities," which traces, through the works of famous thinkers from 1776 to the present, the evolving social, political and economic life of western man, is being offered at Minnesota "U".

The Stroller

My, my, some of the people have all the luck! Annette Crowe took the Commerce 199 class to the Bookstore and treated them to cokes for she was the first member of the class to get a position for next year. But the class's luck didn't stop there. It seems that Mr. Neece was hungry; so he treated the class to doughnuts.

Of course the Stroller didn't believe that Hattie Houp was thinking of the Navy men who are coming to the College the first of July when Hattie remarked that she wouldn't plan to teach if she had the opportunity to supervise the "Bearcats' Den" for sixteen more months beginning July 1. The Stroller wouldn't mind having that job for herself.

The Student Senate had a big time making martyrs of themselves Cleanup Day by washing off campaign signs on the gray wall. But maybe this will be an object lesson to all "would-be politicians" who may feel the urge for a paint brush next campaign season.

Finals are creeping up on us—So are the spring banquets, et cetera. Seniors are worrying over whether or not they must take the finals—the Stroller imagines they are more worried about how they are going to make all the social functions.

The Alpha Sigs gave their annual spring formal Saturday night. Freshman "barn dance" was Friday. Phi Sigs are the center of attention this week end.

Four Hundred Navy Men—or had you heard? Predictions are being made that the feminine roster of the campus will also increase.

Jean Gilpin is sporting a new fraternity pin. Congratulations.

Jennie Moore is another Dormite receiving congratulations. A pair of silver wings are the cause.

There were many week-end guests on the campus—old grads, families, et cetera.

Among the couples roaming the campus are Jeff Davis and Edna Stephens, Dwight McDonald and Helen Campbell, and June Morris and Jack Carson.

Ten Commandments

(Modern Version) (Borrowed from the "Public Service Ride Guide")
1. Thou shalt not pretend to know more than thy neighbor upon the coming or going of troops, munitions, or men.

2. Thou shalt stay out of Washington: both thou and thy conventions and thy car and thy family's family and all thy correspondence and thy personal problems;
none of these shalt thou bring Washington for they clutter up the works.

3. Thou shalt not harass thy son because he hath not a commission; neither shalt thou make him to feel the service of an enlisted man to be beneath his college education and thy colonial background;
neither shalt these things be held against him by other enlisted men if thou dost not make of them an abomination.

4. Thou shalt not hoard; only the squirrel hoardeth and this he doeth because he is a squirrel.

5. Thou shalt not get ants in thy pants to put on a uniform only because thou art vain and hast no courage to hoe thy row in the place where thou art most needed.

6. Thou shalt forbid thy family to make shopping trips on street cars or buses at hours when the workers goeth or returneth from their labors; for lo, thy family taketh all the room.

7. Thou shalt look out; neither shalt er shalt thou walk out; neither shalt thou look out; neither shalt thou sit down on the job; in order that thy days may be long in this land of plenty.

8. Thou shalt not in thy confidence measure the seas, for verily they who have thought to hide behind the seas are full of prune juice.

9. Thou shalt not fret because of evil-doers for thou hast not done so well thyself.

10. Thou shalt not lose faith;
thou hast lost nothing beyond recovery if thy faith be not lost.

Letter Tells of WSSF in Europe

European Students Benefit Greatly by Help Given Them, Says Letter.

The following is part of a letter from Robert Mackie, vice-chairman of the European Student Relief Fund, to Billie Rowland, World Student Service Fund executive secretary, which was printed in the last issue of the WSSF Newsletter:

"I was able to spend four days with M. deBlonay in Sweden and as the hours went by I was more and more amazed at the efficient and imaginative way in which the European Student Relief Fund is being handled. For example, the Fund has a very high reputation amongst men studying in prisoner of war camps because it deals promptly and intelligently with their requests for books and material. It is no mean achievement that 1500 parcels of books should issue each month from 13 rue Calvin, Geneva.

"In the second place, I came to realize more fully the dire need of help in which many of our fellow students stand. As the years go by it becomes much more difficult for a prisoner of war to go on studying patiently. Those who continue to do so deserve, therefore, all the assistance we can possibly provide. Many of the refugees from Central Europe whom we were helping in France have escaped into Switzerland. There are still refugees being cared for by our French friends who must rely wholly upon the support of Swiss and Swedish funds. In Switzerland there are the Polish internees whose academic work is so notable that two of them have already obtained doctorates from Swiss universities. This remains one of the most constructive things that can be done for a great country in its time of agony.

"In the third place, I was tremendously encouraged to find that British, Swedish, and Swiss students are as interested in this work of relief as American and Canadian students are. In the British universities, I found many of the schemes for raising money which I have found in American campuses. At the last meeting of the British Committee which I attended, the sum of $400 was voted for relief amongst Burmese students who are refugees in India, and further plans were made for raising funds for Chinese students. The books collected and sent by British students to Geneva are the main source of study material upon which Andre de Blonay relies. Swedish students have set themselves to provide the notebooks which students in the prison camps require, and which are unavailable elsewhere in Europe. A group of Norwegian refugees in Sweden had just raised $150 as a scholarship for a German refugee student. A hundred and fifty Swiss students have pledged themselves to give a couple of dollars a month for food parcels for Belgian students. And in one Swiss university every student on matriculating paid down fifty cents as an act of student solidarity."

Enrollment of students for correspondence work through the University of Texas extension teaching bureau this year totals 1,555, as compared with 1,398 last year.

A MOTHER'S DREAM

("Copr." May 28, 1941, by Mrs. C. D. Fountain)

A tiny form of life came forth some twenty years ago; How I'd prayed. How I'd longed for a child and so it came to be a son to me, and Oh how proud was I He was the image of his Dad, who for his country died. And as I held him close to me and memories came to mind, I thought of when his Dad had said, "He'll be yours and mine." But fate had played a different part, a part I'll not forget—"I pray that God might spare you, Son." At that my eyes grew wet. As my son began to grow and be a part of me, I couldn't help but wonder, if he too would come to be A soldier like his Dad had been, so brave, and really true. Who fought to save his country, and gave up me and you. That son of mine is now a man, I've given him all I had. His Dad I know would be so proud, of such a fine, young lad. My every prayer, these days and times, is, "God, if it may be, Don't let him die a soldier's death, but send him back to me."

Course in Post-War Problems Is Offered

NEW YORK, N. Y.—(ACP)—A new course attempting to pattern the path of post-war education in the United States, one of the first of its kind, is being given at Teachers college, Columbia university, during the spring semester under guidance of Dr. William G. Carr, secretary of the Educational Policies commission, in cooperation with Dr. John K. Norton, director of the division of the organization and administration of education at the college.

"Local school systems must free their imaginations and immediately begin to take stock of the situation which will confront them when the war is over," said Dr. Norton, discussing the purpose of the course. "They must recognize that there will be millions of youths in their late teens and early twenties whose eyes will turn from the battlefield and factory toward the classroom and shop."

The course, which is in the form of a conference-workshop, is designed to deal specifically with such post-war problems as unemployment, rehabilitation of wounded, the need for completing the education of those who were inducted into the army following high school, necessary technological adjustments due to cessation of war industries and growth of peacetime ones, and the growing necessity for cooperation between schools and other community educational agencies.

Participants in the workshop are urged to bring specific problems of their home communities, which will range from urban, such as New York, to farming, such as is found in New Jersey and Connecticut, to the class for discussion and interpretation. In this way it is hoped that a complete set of recommendations for methods of meeting these post-war problems will be available for various types of locations.

Dean Leake Tells How Citizen May Combat Gas

DETROIT—(ACP)—Poison war gases are not the horrible weapons men imagine, Dean C. D. Leake of the University of Texas school of medicine told the American Chemical society recently.

Moreover, he said, the ordinary citizen may easily take care of himself with equipment readily available in every household.

A wet cloth or handkerchief over the nose and mouth makes a fair mask for gas concentrations civilians might encounter.

Kitchen bleach, if soaked into the handkerchief, will destroy most gases. If eyes, nose or throat are irritated, they should be washed with a solution of a teaspoon of baking powder in a glass of water.

If liquid war gas is splattered on clothing, take it off in a hurry and throw it out of a window. If the liquid splatters on the skin, dab, don't rub, with a cloth wet with kitchen bleach, or with soap and water.

Student Is Author of Text Used in His Class

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—(ACP)—After the army air corps announced it would train meteorological students at the University of New Mexico, the faculty of the English department prepared for the customary tussle with comma splices, dangling participles, and split infinitives.

Dr. T. M. Pearce, head of the department, outlined the "Written and Oral Communication" courses for the soldiers, and waved before his colleagues a military pamphlet on military correspondence form, mentioned it as one of the textbooks to be used.

A few minutes later Sergeant Clarence H. Grasso approached Dr. Pearce apologetically. "Would it be proper for me to introduce myself?" he asked. "I helped to write the army book you mentioned that we are going to use in class."

Varsity Villagers Have Picnic to Replace Formal

Those who will receive pins will be Misses Betty Jo Thompson, Dorothy Bundy, Eulaine Fox, Irene Walkup, Pauline Cooper, Mary Uhlig and Mary Ann Haines. Miss Marian B. Lippitt, director of personnel for women, is sponsor of the organization.

Engineering college of the University of Detroit is using an enlarged and revised wind tunnel to meet army and navy demands of increased speed and improved efficiency in testing of military aircraft.

The University of Illinois extension division offers 60 courses from accountancy to mechanics for which university credit is given.

Those in Service

It is with real regret that the staff of the Northwest Missourian must break the news to those in service that this will be the last issue of the College paper until the opening of the fall quarter. It has been a pleasure to feel that the College paper has met a real need with you—the keeping in touch with your Alma Mater and your classmates.

Next fall the paper will again be ready for you. Here is your part of the contract: Send your address so that it will reach the office of the Northwest Missourian by the first week in September. Every address of those in the armed forces will be taken off the mailing list at the end of this spring term and a complete new mailing list will be made up at the beginning of the fall quarter. If you should like to receive the paper, see that your address is sent in. Address: The Northwest Missourian, Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, Maryville, Missouri.

Interesting letters from service people that are received this summer will be used next fall. The staff will welcome letters.

Tools and Chest Are on Display on Second Floor

The tool chest and the tools presented in March to the College by Mr. Charles S. Allen of Stanberry and Mr. Clark D. Allen of Maryville are now on display in the case on Second Floor. Along with the tools are some other articles from the same period.

Since the tools came to the College, Dr. Joseph W. Hake and Dr. Frank Horstfall have spent some time in cleaning and polishing the tools. Dr. Hake has used the planes, none of which needed sharpening, and has demonstrated the type of work each plane will do. Samples of the work are on display.

Dr. Horstfall calls special attention to a set of bits in the case. He says that it is unusual to find so complete a set.

The tools, with the exception of a few articles which have been taken from the set for use by the families inheriting them are what Daniel Allen used on building houses and finishing cabinets. Daniel Allen, the original owner, was born in 1824.

Robert Coffman Is at Beloit Taking Training

Recently a letter came from Bob Coffman, who left with the ERC in March. Mr. Coffman is in Beloit, Wisconsin, a city of about 30,000. In writing about the college there, he says, "It was established in 1846, I believe, by religious interests. The normal enrollment is about 600. Most students are from Lakeside District in Chicago. The campus and buildings are beautiful."

Mr. Coffman thinks he will be in college from two to five months. He is taking physics, European history, and geography. In describing a typical day there, he says, "Our day is very full with very little time to ourselves. Our evenings are used as supervised study periods. From 5:45 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. we have classes; drill, physical training, and various other things. . . . Our physical training is very strenuous—we know we have done something when we finish with that class."

"HOW ABOUT A COCA-COLA"

"LECTURES OVER. WE'RE ON OUR OWN NOW"

"HELP YOURSELF, MEN. I KEEP A FEW DOLLARS IN NICKELS JUST FOR 'COKE TIME'"

"THANK YOU, SIR—I'VE GOT A REAL THIRST"

"Remember reading that in your newspaper? That's a real story from the South Pacific. When it's time to stand by for refreshment, that's the job for ice-cold Coca-Cola. Goes right where thirst comes from and refreshment comes to take its place. That's why nothing takes the place of ice-cold Coca-Cola. It has a taste and refreshing qualities all its own."

Flight School
It possible for a student to begin his primary training, and take a complete course here which would give him his private pilot's license, his commercial license and an instructor's rating. But at that time only about one out of every four students was going on into the advanced training.

As compared to the start of flight training in Maryville, when Lieut. Sayler left in September, 1942, they had 105 acres for the students, nine airplanes operated by the School of Aeronautics, and nine instructors with a full staff of eighteen to twenty, including the ground school instructors.

The school began as a civilian enterprise to offer flight training to those who wanted to learn how to fly. This expanded until the Civilian Pilot Training program was taken over by the government after the war started, and it became a War Training Service program, turning out earnest, serious-minded young pilots to whom flying had become a grim business.

Book Review

This novel is the story of Mary Rafferty, who on September 19, 1873, not quite sixteen and wearing her first long skirt, rang the side-door bell of the Scott mansion in Pittsburgh, and started work as "tween-maid" in the household of the stern and bearded ironmaster. The book is divided into three parts with the names of three of the characters as titles, but it is really a story of Mary Rafferty, a novel of love and devotion, of unswerving loyalty and self-sacrifice, the glowing, and eventful record of a girl who became the conscience of a family, the true representative of their integrity, both in the home and in the roaring tumult of the steel mills.

In time the story spans almost seven decades of American life—from the eve of Black Friday to the attack on Pearl Harbor. Four generations of the Scott Family move across its pages. It is a magnificent and moving panorama of American family and business life, packed with drama, romance, the clash of warring temperaments, the turmoil and change of business, the rise of new fortunes, and new ideas, the coming of sturdy new nationalities to the great labor fields of Pennsylvania—and all of it is dominated by Mary Rafferty, one of the most lovable characters in American fiction. After you have finished this book you will remember these characters as your intimate acquaintances.

Mr. Bowman has not been interested in astronomy all his life. He said that during the depression when he was out of work he decided to go to the library and read and catch up on the schooling he had missed. He happened to read about telescopes, became interested, and started making them and has made many since that time. When he first started, he ground lens out of flat cake plates.

He gives lectures at various places on astronomy and also on the Bible. Among his hobbies are depth photography and music. He is now writing a Quinceañer which will combine the five senses with music. He is trying to show that music suggests colors, odors, and so forth. Mr. Bowman is visualizing an orchestra playing and meanwhile the audience can see certain colors; different perfumes will accompany the parts of the music which suggest various odors, and small wafers, corresponding to the music, will be passed out to be eaten.

Mr. Bowman has been a typesetter in a printshop but he is now hoping to become connected with an observatory to continue his interests along the line of astronomy. He lives in east Kansas City where he has his telescope and where as many as seventy-five people come to see him at one time.
